President's Corner

As February 2020 comes to its end, I reflect on historical contributions honored and presidential birthdays celebrated this month.

First, in the month of February, three amazing U.S. Presidents were born: George Washington, born February 22nd, 1732, in Westmoreland County, Virginia; Abraham Lincoln, born February 12th, 1809, in Hardin County, Kentucky; and Ronald Reagan, born in Tampico, Illinois, on February 6th, 1911.

George Washington: when the American Revolutionary War broke out in 1775, Congress appointed George Washington as the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army.

Washington and his troops eventually won that war, which in turn brought forth our nation, the United States. A newly-created Electoral College selected Washington as the first president in 1788. He received 100 percent of the electoral votes and remains the only U.S. president to be elected unanimously. He was re-elected, unanimously, in the 1792 election. President Washington refused to run for a third term, thereby establishing the tradition of a maximum of two terms for a president. The two-term tradition later became law by passage of the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution. As President, George Washington also established the US Navy in 1784. And, with passage of the Judiciary Act of 1789, he established a six-member Supreme Court, to include a Chief Justice and five Associate Justices

Abraham Lincoln: On January 1, 1863, Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation which initiated the procedure for freeing the slaves in America. The proclamation, which was issued during the American Civil War, allowed black soldiers to fight for the Union against the Confederacy. It was also a precursor of the Thirteenth Amendment, which made slavery and indentured servitude illegal in the United States. Lincoln wasn't able to see passage of the Thirteenth Amendment in December 1865; he was assassinated in April the same year. Lincoln always promoted the notion of preserving the Union, always envisioning a effort at reconstruction and not destruction; and he sought a return of the secessionist states back into the Union. Lincoln also established the Revenue Act of 1862, creating the Office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue which later became the IRS.

Ronald Reagan: Ronald Reagan ran for U.S. president in 1980 against the incumbent Democratic President Jimmy Carter. Reagan won the election by a landslide, receiving the highest number of electoral votes ever won by a non-incumbent presidential candidate. Reagan was sworn in as the 40th President of the United States on January 20, 1981. At that time he was the oldest person to be inaugurated as president at the age of 69. (In 2016, Donald Trump was elected President at the age of 70, surpassing Reagan's record.). In the 1984 US Presidential Elections, Reagan was re-elected. He won 49 of 50 states and won a record 525 electoral votes, receiving 59% of the popular vote. President Reagan survived an assassination attempt in his second term. He also appointed the first female Supreme Court Justice, Sandra Day O'Connor. In Reagan's second term, diplomacy led to his friendship with the reform-minded Mikhail Gorbachev (1931-), the Russian leader of the Soviet Union in 1985. In 1987, the Americans and Soviets signed a historic agreement to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear missiles (START 1). That same year, Reagan spoke at Germany's Berlin Wall, a symbol of communism since WW2's end, and famously challenged Russia's Gorbachev to tear it down. Months later, Gorbachev allowed the Berlin Wall to be dismantled in a very public display. Communist East German merged into West Germany and the two separate countries became one united Germany.

Each president made great personal sacrifice to ensure the safety and cohesion of the United States of America. In Lincoln's lifetime, he made the ultimate sacrifice.

In February we also celebrate Black History Month, commemorating considerable achievements and contributions of African-Americans in the United States. In this month, we choose to honor generations of African American leaders who often struggled with adversity, overcame tragedy, and despite tremendous circumstances against them, surpassed their struggles, rose to prominence, gained respect and found their voice through public discourse and political efforts.

Historically speaking, the Republican Party can be proud of its own role in black history. It was founded in 1854 by forces opposed to the expansion of slavery. Abraham Lincoln was the first Republican President. At the 1856 Republican National Convention, a platform was adopted which opposed the expansion of slavery into U.S. territories. Republican Party founders sought to lead our nation away from slavery through legislation and later through congressionally-authorized military might. It was a republican majority in Congress that passed the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments. The 13th amendment to the U.S. Constitution legally abolished slavery in the United States. The 13th, 14th and 15th amendments were known as "Reconstruction Amendments", providing civil rights protections to formerly enslaved African Americans. In all instances, these constitutional amendments were passed by a majority of republican votes in Congress. The first elected black congressmen were themselves members of the Republican Party, a tradition that continued up to the onset of the Great Depression.

Decades later, Martin Luther King became the noble voice and face of the Civil Rights Movement. Many Americans shared in his dream and still do.

More recently, Solano County Republican Central Committee and the CA GOP have endorsed a republican and National Guard veteran named Tamika Hamilton, who is a candidate running for Congress against John Garamendi for a seat in Congressional District 3. In running for office, Tamika Hamilton shares in the ideals of freedom and equality that were envisioned by MLK and other black republican statesmen before her.

Present-day conservative black Americans such as Larry Elder, Thomas Sowell, Candice Owens, Ward Connelly, Burgess Owens, Craig DeLux, the Hodge twins (Kevin and Keith Hodge), Diamond and Silk, Joy Villa and even Kanye West continue to speak out in their own voice, telling truths which need to be told. Unafraid, they talk and write about political issues concerning elections, culture and government. Because of their eloquence and honesty, they are admired by many.

This February, please take time to consider the contributions of these three very special U. S. Presidents, their legacy and sacrifices made so that we might continue to live free as a nation. Also, reflect on the contributions to our nation of many known and lesser known black Americans. Our nation is better because of their vision, dedication and perseverance. They are all Americans who made a positive difference along the historical journey we travel together.

Caring for America

The California Federation of Republican Women (CFRW) strives to serve local communities in unique and thoughtful ways. Across the state, clubs participate in the National Federation of Republican Women's "Caring for America" project. Through the "Caring for America" project, women actively support local and national organizations helping to create a better future for our nation. By joining together in our support for the project, California women have the opportunity to prove that women working together for a common purpose can make a difference.

Working with NFRW Caring for America our clubs develop projects which assist our communities to flourish. Recently and still we have been supporting through gift cards and other assistance to help the communities devastated from the recent fires in Southern and Northern California.

The Caring for America program is based on the belief that problems can be solved most effectively through the generosity and combined energies of individual citizens. The NFRW presents the Caring for America Awards every two years to recognize successful projects that demonstrate significant value to the community.

Cookies for Cops

Cookies for Cops is a community service project suggested by the Northern Division at our last conference. It is a way to tell our law enforcement officers, firefighters and first responders that we appreciate them, value them, and want to lift their spirits. It is a way to extend our thanks to first responders for being there for us and to let them know we think about them and want them to know it.

Each month we will ask members to volunteer to bring cookies to our next meeting where they will be prepared and delivered to one of our local agencies.

Thank you to Margie Keck, Georgia Wright, and Shirlee Pierce for their generous baking efforts.

Literacy Program

(Contact: Carolyn Cotton-422-2750)

Reach Out and Read: is a pediatric literacy program (age 0-5) supported in partnership with Solano County Library, small health clinics in the county and larger medical groups such as North Bay Healthcare Foundation, Sutter Regional Medical Foundation and Kaiser Permanente. It makes literacy promotion a standard part of pediatric care.

Understanding that the time to start reading to children is in infancy, pediatricians and healthcare providers incorporate books and reading into well baby checkups for children from birth to five years old.

During the checkup, health-care providers give parents concrete, developmentally appropriate advice about reading, as well as use books as an assessment tool in determining the child's development.

At the end of each visit, the child is given an age and language appropriate book. Trained volunteers also share books and stories with children while they wait for their appointments, showing, by example, successful techniques for reading aloud.

Each guest speaker at a Solano Republican Women Federated meeting is asked to sign a bookplate in a child's book indicating a donation of the book is being made by Solano Republican Women Federated and the book is then donated to the Solano County Library Reach Out and Read Program.*

Under the NFRW/CFRW umbrella, we also support various scholarships and other programs!

More About Proposition 13

Two Letters to the Editor, Daily Republic, January 31, 2020

Prop. 13 will raise rents

I explained recently how Proposition 13 dealt with project labor agreements. The typical terms in PLAs cut out the great majority of local construction workers. They hurt school districts because projects cost more than they would with open competitive bidding. And we taxpayers pay for the inefficiency.

The other significant part of Proposition 13 increases the dollar amount of bonds which school districts can sell – the bond cap. This is a limit based on the assessed valuation of taxable properties in the district. A district can issue bonds based on a percentage of those assessed values, currently 1.25 percent for community college districts and 2.5 percent for unified school districts.

Proposition 13 increases the bonding percentage to 2 percent for community colleges and 4 percent for unified school districts, a 60 percent increase! To get an idea of how this affects us, I asked the County Auditor-Controller's Office for past years' valuations on which Measure Q (Solano Community College) and Measure J (Fairfield-Suisun School District) were based.

Remember, our two school districts essentially maxed their old bond caps with those measures. But, because of rapidly rising property values and the increased caps, taxable property valuations are now huge numbers – eye-glazing – so I won't trigger you with the math.

Bottom line, Proposition 13 will enable Fairfield-Suisun School District to propose up to about $390 million in new bonds (after subtracting current debt from the caps). Solano Community College District could propose up to about $760 million in new bonds. These are staggering numbers – scary when bond payments show up on our property tax statements.

Renters aren't left out. Your landlord's property tax increase will quickly appear in your rent.

Spread the word: This Proposition 13 is disaster!

John Takeuchi
Fairfield

Proposition 13 will create more property tax increases

John Takeuchi's latest column, "The Taxwatchers: This Prop. 13 is not what you think it is" (Daily Republic Jan. 18, 2020) made the case for voters to defeat the upcoming $15 billion school bond on the March 3 ballot by emphasizing an important point. It mandates Project Labor Agreements for construction of the school projects, which will raise the cost of the projects by 15 percent on average.

But the other point he touched on was even more alarming to me.

This proposition doesn't just provide $15 billion in matching funds to the school districts, it allows all school and community college districts to increase their bonding authority from 2.5 percent of the taxable property of the district to 4 percent . . . an increase of 60 percent.

What that means for all of us is that school districts will be able to go into even more debt in years ahead by passing future bond assessments on top of the ones they already have.

And of course, they have been able to do this quite successfully since 2000 when the voting threshold for school bonds was changed to 55 percent, not two-thirds of the vote.

Since then, of the 1,056 school bond elections held from 2001 through November 2017, 885 – or 84 percent – succeeded. Of the 954 elections under the previous two-thirds requirement vote from 1986 through November 2016, 522 – or 55 percent – succeeded.

This should alarm every homeowner and renter. Think your housing costs are high now?

The Right Stuff: Now for the rest of the story . . .

By Jim McCully

Jim McCully: The Right Stuff

In homage to the great broadcaster Paul Harvey, I'm responding to the column from my colleague Jack Batson concerning the 5th District Board of Supervisors election. Paul Harvey would open the broadcast with a topic then he would say to his listeners – "And now the rest of the story!"

We were told biographical data about both candidates Mitch Mashburn and David Isom but perhaps not enough. I have known Mitch for many years professionally and personally. I only recently met David spending some time speaking with and listening to him.

Both are talented. The question is who's able to shoulder the burden of leadership. One either has the moral fiber leadership requires or not. We see far too many posers today in politics. We cannot afford more at any level.

Mitch Mashburn's family has deep roots in Solano County going back more than 100 years. He understands the rich history of the county and its economic and social diversity. He has been in law enforcement on the custody side of the Sheriff's Office for 33 years. He rose through the ranks to become the facility commander, which means he is responsible to Sheriff Thomas Ferrara for county jail facilities with 250-plus sworn and civilian employees, and with managing a budget of more than $10 million.

Mitch, like many of us in law enforcement, realized the justice system is, in reality, a warehouse with a revolving door constantly recycling people. He and Sheriff Ferrara realized many of the people were functionally illiterate. So, this along with a criminal record, ensures offender had little success.

It's simple: If you can't read, write, or count – just look at California's educational system ranking – it's hard to get gainfully employed. If you can't, you end up back inside.

So, they decided to do something about it. Sheriff Ferrara put Mitch in charge of writing up a grant proposal to the Board of State and Community Corrections to update jail facilities. The grant, totaling $100 million, was submitted, approved and funded. Solano County got the modernized facilities necessary to get the program moving.

Next, the Rourke Vocational Center was envisioned, funded and built to teach inmates real job skills, facilitating rehabilitation and return to normal life as productive citizens, taxpayers and members of the community. Remember these folks have families, too, and return to their homes in Solano. The example shown, by them going forward, affects everyone: spouses, children and we the general public.

The other aspects of his career included the creation of partnerships with local nonprofits and private organizations (trade unions) to help provide the needed services for our incarcerated population. He wrote contracts for services, policies for the Sheriff's Office, negotiated with public unions over implementation of policies and procedures, etc. He worked with almost every department and division within county government. He knows the people involved, who does what and how to get them together to get things done.

Jack said, as a city councilman, Mitch was not showing due diligence with regard to unfunded liabilities for pensions and health insurance costs. However, the truth is he was the only councilman offering to meet with a group of concerned citizens over the issues.

Jack praised David, listing his accomplishments. David is a pastor of a large church, a veteran and an educated man. He has served on the Fairfield-Suisun School Board for 10 years and was its president twice. Jack claims the school district is financially stable. Yet, the very issue he raised about Mashburn (unfunded liabilities) begs the question as documented June 30 in the Fairfield-Suisun School District Audit Report, which reports: Post-retirement health care benefits liability is nearly $73.5 million and the net pension liability is nearly $240.9 million. Why? Who's responsible? Who was in charge?

Elections truly do have consequences, folks. Vote.
